A

The hotel is situated on a square overlooking a little neglected park, it's a very short walk into the town centre. Parking on site is a bit tight and limited. Our room was very small with a sink in the room, but a decent double bed and an adequate bathroom.. this was my second visit to the hotel. The room I had last time was much larger with a marvellous view.the English breakfast is not to be missed. This hotel offers some old-fashioned English charm for just $75 a night!

B

Despite the excellent location, the hotel was bad value for money. The whole place, other than the dining room, is in need of renovation, but the prices did not reflect this. The room had a worn carpet, wallpaper hanging off the walls and a rusty shower in the bathroom. Bed linen and towels were spotless, though. My main complaint is reserved for the cooked breakfast, which I never received. The waitress brought the wrong order to my table and then disappeared forever. I complained at the reception but was offered no apology.

C

We had a great time staying at the hotel. The welcome was friendly and there's a convenient car park at the back. The lobby is a nice comfortable place to relax and the dining room is cosy. That said, the rooms are a little drab and need some updating. Given the pictures I saw on the website, I had the impression the room and its bathroom would be larger and more modern than they actually were. If you stay here, request a room on the side that is not facing the busy Malcolm Street. It will be much quieter.

	Which guest	A	B	C
1	suggests the hotel is too expensive?
2	complains about the quality of the service?
3	says different rooms have different standards?
4	found the parking space adequate?
5	appreciated the food served in the hotel?

Schoolgirl survives lightning strike

15-year-old Sophie Wiltshire was asleep when lightning hit her family home in South Gloucestershire, at around 12.20 am this morning. The lightning bolt hit the roof of the house and was then conducted through the metal frame of the bed, just inches from where Sophie was lying. Fortunately, she was not touching the metal surface, and so she escaped potentially life-threatening injuries.

'I just remember falling asleep and then my sister Kim was screaming and pushed my door open and managed to get me out. The next thing I knew I was outside the house', Sophie said today.

The ceiling had collapsed in Sophies bedroom covering everything in plaster, dust and othert debris. One wall was burnt to black behind the headboard, showing just how close the girl had come to being seriously injured in the unusual accident. Her 14-year-old sister Gina was also lucky to escape unharmed aftert her bedroom ceiling also crashed to the floor.

'I just heard this bang and saw this plaster coming down. I thought I had fallen through the ceiling', Gina said.

Clive Wiltshire and his wife Judie were at home together with their four children when the lightning hit. The terrified family fled the house and spent the night at a neighbour's house as firefighters cordoned off their five-bedroom luxury home. Today they ere showing local people in the village the chaos the lightning had cvaused, ehich included damage to a third bedroom, a burnt out fuse box and a roof in need of major repair work. 'It was a bad night but at least everyone is okay', Mrs Wiltshire said. ' We're quite calm about it. We're trying to get through to our insurance people but because it's New Year's Eve, it's difficult', she said.

Other homes in the village also suffered power blackouts and phone line failures in the storm.
